OPPORTUNITIES

The 2015 Women In Technology International Summit (WITI Summit), May 31 - June 2 in San Jose, is the annual gathering of tech-savvy women, held in the heart of Silicon Valley. Executive women, entrepreneurs, and technology thought leaders from around the world converge to collaborate on innovative solutions to common business challenges; explore new business opportunities that underscore how technology is powering change; and build and expand strong connections in a welcoming networking environment of women committed to helping each other succeed.

These important influencers drive buying decisions for technology purchases. The WITI Summit provides sponsors with exclusive access to this audience on a year-round basis, including product displays at this face-to-face event.

Ancillary benefits of a sponsorship include developing future women leaders for your own organization; promoting a culture of diversity that positions your company as a home for ambitious and talented business executives and technical experts; and seeding business development opportunities for your female staff. Note that the WITI Summit is open and welcoming to male attendees too, unlike other women-centric technology events with a narrow editorial mission.

WITI has established strategic relationships with major media groups worldwide focused on empowering women in technology — print publications, newsletters, portals, consultants, associations and user groups. The 2015 Summit will have the participation of 50+ partners. This global promotional campaign dwarfs the support of any similar conferences. Your valuable message — and leadership positioning — reaches millions of prospects before you even arrive at the WITI Summit.

WITI seeks to build commercial partnerships with a handful of product and service vendors who share our total customer immersion approach to building relationships within women's executive and technology communities. This approach should be part of your overall marketing mix.

Don't wait! Sponsorships are limited. Contact the WITI team today re sponsorship of the WITI Summit in 2015.
